Green Chemistry Symposium

This symposium introduces attendees to the basic principles of green chemistry, provides an academic perspective of green chemistry, describes the application of green chemistry by industry, summarizes efforts to promote green chemistry by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and provides a legislative update on how green chemistry may impact the future of California.

The symposium is free and open to the public. A background in chemistry is not required to attend. Registration is required for on-site attendance, and space is limited. Web cast attendees are encouraged to register in order to receive notification of future symposia. Check the Department of Toxic Substances Control's Green Chemistry web page (<http://www.dtsc.ca.gov/PollutionPrevention/GreenChemistry.cfm>) for updates to the agenda, details on registration, and information for off-site attendance via web cast.

Sponsored by the Department of Toxic Substances Control (DTSC).
